DROWNED IN A BRANCH

A Man Sick of Pneumonia Leaves His Bed and Goes to the Woods, Where His Body is Found.

Salisbury Truth-Index.

No man knoweth what a day may bring forth, neither does mortal man know when or how his earthly pilgrimage will cease. Only a few days have elapsed since Mr. Harrold Horn, a young farmer of Calahan, Davie county, could have been seen going about his usual occupation, never so much as dreaming that that remorseless reaper, Death, was so nigh at hand, much less hidden in the crystal waters of the gurgling, rippling, playful brook, on whose banks he had played, and of its refreshing, pure, sparkling liquid he had so oft partaken and loved to poddle in from his boyhood days. But, as a matter of fact, such was his sad ending, though not intentional.

Mr. Horn became ill several days ago with pneumonia, he went to bed and was well looked after by his mother and sister, but he grew worse, became delirious, a man assistant was called in and as the disease progressed, the fever ran high, the patient became crazed and unmanageable, overpowered his feeble watchers and stalked out into the cold night. His mother and sister were so terrified and had become so exhausted that, though the man present desired to follow Mr. Horn, they claimed his attention, and as Mr. Horn had dressed himself it was thought he would stroll around, become cooled and either come back or go to some neighbor's.

This occurred late Tuesday evening and as he had not returned a search about the premises and along the branch revealed his remains lying in a branch only about two hundred yards from the house. He had partially undressed and was lying with his face down and his hands crossed on his chest. The water being only about three inches deep at this place it is thought while thus cooling himself he became exhausted and was unable to extricate himself.

Death of Mr. Geo. Weeks Alley.

The very serious condition of Mr. George Weeks Alley was noted yesterday, with the statement that he was not likely to live through the night. The fear was well expressed, for he died at four o'clock this morning.

For the years that he has been here Mr. Alley has been held high in the esteem of all whose privilege it was to know him. He was born seventy-seven years ago in Prince George county, Virginia. In 1845 he was married to Miss J. V. Malone also of Virginia, and for fifty-six years the journey through life was made by her side, and then the Death Angel came for her, leaving him to go "sorrowing alone."

For many weeks Mr. Alley has lain on a bed of sufferring, attended by devoted friends and relatives, ever eager to minister to his comfort. During his last days, realizing that his recovery was impossible, he expressed himself as resting secure in God's love. His last moments were peaceful and his passing was but a "sleep and forgetting." Truly may it be said, he has died the death of the righteous. The deceased was a consistent member of West Market church where he has served long and faithfully in the official ranks. There, as in all circles in which he moved, he will be sorely missed.

Those who are left in sad bereavement are his two sons, Mr. T. W. Alley and Mr. W. R. Alley, both of this city; two brothers and a son in Virginia, and six grandchildren, to all of whom the sympathy of the community is cordially extended.

Funeral services conducted by Rev. L. W. Crawford and Dr. S. B. Turrentine, will be held at 10:30 tomorrow morning, at West Market street church.

New Firm.

The stock of groceries of W. L. Wharton & Co., one member of which firm has recently assigned and thereby caused the store to be closed, has been purchased by the Rankin Bros. Grocery Company. The firm is composed of Messrs. A. G., John and Jim Rankin. The latter will conduct the business. These young men are well and favorably known, and will deserve, and receive, a liberal patronage.

Mr. H. W. Fraser, of the Myrtle Furniture Company, finds it necessary, owing to increase in business, to add 35 feet to the machinery and finishing department. The company has just received an order from a northern firm for two car loads of roller top desks, which is a specialty with the company.

Yesterday evening at 7 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parent's, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Armfield, at Jamestown, Mr. Charles Wesley Covington, formerly of this place, and Miss Jennie V. Armfield were united in marriage. Rev. J. R. Scroggs, presiding elder of Greensboro district, was the officiating minister.

The Eagle Furniture Company is building a neat show room on their property.

The following announcement has been sent out: "Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Snow request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Bertha Augusta, to Mr. Frederick George Barbee, on Wednesday evening, February 20th, 1901, at 6 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church, High Point. The announcement names two of our most popular young people and their many friends will read it with interest.

Mr. J. P. Redding is building a house adjoining the Alma Furniture Company, which will be used to manufacture wash boards, another new specialty in the wood line for this place.

Mr. Root, and friend, of New York, are at the Edwards House. They are here on a hunting expedition.

The committee has decided to beautify the cemetery by making the walks and driveways solid with white gravel.

Mr. J. Elwood Cox went to Arkansas this week on business.

The High Point Grain and Feed Company is a new concern for this place, doing business in the L. J. Ingram building on Main street. It is a wholesale establishment.

Mr. Fred Racket, who has charge of Mr. W. Gould Brokaw's horses, left yesterday for San Antonio, Texas, to purchase fifty Texas ponies for Fairview Lodge, located near here. The ponies will first be taken to New York for training.

Mrs. R. A. Wheeler has recovered from a prolonged attack of la grippe.

Misses Mary Kennett, of Raleigh, and Bertha Donnelly, of Charlotte, are here to attend the marriage of their friend, Miss Gertrude Diffee.

Mrs. James A. Thompson and Miss Anna Brewer, of Pittsboro, are visiting the family of Mr. George A. Matton.

Mrs. W. G. Barbee is confined to her room with an aggrivated case of la grippe.

Dr. D. A. Stanton had another slight attack of appendicitis which has kept him in doors for the past several days.

Doe Swaim, an old High Point boy, is in from Missouri after an absence of 30 years.

Dispensary Primary.

The members of the Legislature from Mecklenburg, on request of advocates of a dispensary for Charlotte, have asked that a primary be held to get the opinion of the people of the county.

A BEAUTIFUL MARRIAGE.

Miss Diffee, of High Point, United to Mr. J. Reitzell—One of the Maids Lost Her Trunk.

One of the prettiest marriage that ever took place in High Point occurred in the Methodist Protestant church there last night, the contracting parties being Miss Gertrude Diffee and Mr. J. F. Reitzell. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of Mendelsohn's wedding march, played by Miss Donnelly, of Charlotte, and while the solemn words of the ceremony were being spoken by Rev. Mr. Parker, assisted by Rev. Mr. Lowdermilk, of Asheboro, Lohengrin's Meditation was softly played, and when the bride and groom turned from the altar the organ pealed forth Lohengrin's beautiful wedding march.

The bride wore a going-away dress of blue, and carried bride's roses. She was given away by her brother, Mr. W. S. Diffee.

The attendants were Mr. E. S. Wills, of this city, with Miss Stena Reitzell, of Liberty, Mr. L. Moyer with Miss Mary Kennett, of Raleigh, Mr. C. S. Morris, of Central Falls, with Miss Debnah Tomlinson. Miss Ethel Diffee, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mr. C. E. Brower, of this city, best man. The bridesmaids wore white organdy and carried white carnations. The maid of honor carried pink carnations.

The church was beautifully decorated with evergreens and potted flowers. After the ceremony the newly wedded couple took the southbound train for their future home in Savannah, Ga.

Mr. Reitzel is well known here, he having been engaged in railway service in this city several years, and has a host of friends here who offer him their congratulations. Miss Diffee is one of High Point's most popular young ladies, and it is with regret that her many friends give her up. The couple were the recipients of a large number of handsome and useful presents.

Miss Mary Kennett one of the bridesmaids, had her trunk robbed between Raleigh and High Point, the thief taking the waist of the dress she intended wearing at the marriage. This caused the other bridesmaids to change their dresses, wearing white instead of blue.

Mrs. Diffee gave a reception to the bridal party on Wednesday night.

Examination of Applicants.

Candidates for admission into the United States Naval Academy will meet the committee of examiners in the grand jury room of the court house tomorrow morning at nine o'clock. The examining committee are: J. Y. Joyner, Dred Peacock, J. R. Wharton. These gentlemen have been appointed by Congressman Kitchin to conduct the examination. The questions asked will be in the common school studies, with the exception of algebra and geometry. The applicant who makes the best record will receive the appointment from this district.

A Pleasant Occasion.

The hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith, on Gaston street, was the scene of a merry gathering of young folks last night, in honor of Miss Cora Earp, of Roanoke, who is visiting the family of Mr. Smith.

Jollity and fun was the order of the evening, and the time for parting came all too soon. At a late hour, and after being served with delicious refreshments in the dining room, which was decorated with red hearts, the young people separated, voting it a most enjoyable evening.

Court Adjourns.

Court adjourned this morning and Judge Timberlake left at noon for his home. During his four weeks here, Judge Timberlake has made a good impression. He is kind and courteous in his treatment of the persons connected with the court, and alwaye fair in his rulings

Married in Reidsville.

Miss Vance Enoch, and Mr. Anthony Voltz, of Charlotte, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride in Reidsville, and passed through last night on their way to Charlotte. Mr. Voltz formerly resided in Greensboro.

THE HOUSE STILL A'TALKING.

IMPEACHMENT DISCUSSED FROM TEN TO TWO THIRTY.

Then There Was an Ajournment Till Four When the Debate Was Resumed—Rountree's Speech the Feature of the Day.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Feb. 15.—The House is yet engaged in the discussion of the impeachment question. From twenty minutes past ten this morning the battle of argument raged till half past two this afternoon, both for and against.

The chief feature was Rountree's speech of an hour, which was an able argument for impeachment. He said that the Supreme Court was of extraordinary bias. He furtner said that if Treasurer Worth had not been going out of office he never would have paid white's claim, and that it looks very much like a conspiracy.

Sims and McLean spoke against impeachment and in favor of Connor's substitute. Smith of Gates, and Richardson and Hayes of Chatham, took ground against impeachment, and Spainhour in favor.

At 2:30 the House adjourned to resume argument at 4 o'clock.

A bill was introduced in the House by Jenkins to form a county to be called Simmons, out of part of Rockingham. A bill was introduced by Pearson to compensate owners of stolen property.

The Senate passed a bill giving Tarboro a dispensary by a vote of 32 to 6. Nearly the entire session of the Senate was devoted to the divorce bill, which did not get to a vote.

The bill passed giving Madison county prohibition, except the incorporated towns.

In order that our readers may know the character of the debate now going on in Raleigh on the proposed impeachment, we give two speeches of yesterday, taken from The Post, one on each side:

Mr. Stubb's Speech.

Mr. Stubbs, of Martin, began the argument in favor of the minority. He delivered a magnificen speech, eloquent, able and effective. The popular young Representatve from Martin was heartily congratulated upon his effort, which made a profound impression. He said:

I am opposed to the passage of this resolution, and I think it right that I should give you my reasons therefor. As suggested by the gentleman from Wayne we should approach this matter dispationately, with fairness and justice and honestly. When we do that we are answerable nowhere save at the bar of our own conscience.

This is a great question. We are upon the eve of passing upon one of the greatest questions ever presented to the Legislature.

It seems strange, doubtless, that I should be demurring from questions of fact and law, which this committee has reported favorably. I demur honestly so far as their conclusions of fact and law are concerned.

To justify these proceedings we must find that these judges not only committed an error of judgment, but we must go further and say their action was wilfull, corrupt and malicious. The resolution of impeachment says nothing of the decision in the White case, referring only to the mandamus issued by the court. This is a tacit admission that the dicission in the White case is the law of the land. And it is the law and was so held for years by some of the greatest judges in the state. The judges are not on trial for decision in this case. The Legislature is holding them responsible for saying an officer of the State can't be depriveed of his salary while in office.

We have there the spectacle of a gentleman holding an office under the highest legislative and judicial authority and the Legislature saying he shall have no pay for it. The mandamus simply gave a remedy to a citizen and officer of the State, who otherwise was remedyless. White's claim was not a claim against the State as contemplated in the constitution for the constitution says that claims against the State can only be brought before the Supreme Court by petition. White's claim was brought in the Superior Court and a mandamus ordered by Judge Starbuck.

The Supreme Court concurred in its opinion that Judge Starbuck had jurisdiction in the case.

The Legislature of 1899 passed the act for the purpose of circumventing the laws of the State. This was an open secret and known of all men. No lawyer disputes the proposition that every section of an act can be construed on the principle of in para materia. The only difference between what the Legislatures of 1895 and 1897 did and the action of the Legislature of '99 was that the fuisionists were bolder. They openly attempted to take the offices held by Wood and other Democrats. We were more astute. We clothed the purpose of the act of '99 with different verbage and legal phraseology. We were trying to take from a man his office and rights, which had been given to him for four years. In Cotten vs. Ellis it is held that a man cant be starved out of his office. You can't make a man perform the duties of his office and take the compensation away from him.

I believe the court coold have said White was entitled to $2,800. We talk about subverting the rights of a co-ordinate branch of the State government when we have passed an act intended to subvert the principles of our highest court. In the fact of the law we attempted to violate the the existing law when we wrote chapter 21, of the laws of '99. We have a law in North Carolina prescribing an impossible method for the payment of an officer.

It is claimed that the Supreme Court waited until the members of the session of 1899 were out of office before they ordered the isuance of this order. And yet you know that they knew that the election of 1900 would send back a Democratic legislature that was equally powerful to impeach. We ought to be anxious in the investigation of so grave a matter to put the fairest construction possible on the motives of otherwise good and conscientious men. Why they say they shuffled on the bench, when the evidence shows that the court was divided in opinion, and why should we not rather conclude that in not acting hastily, they were honestly seeking the line of duty. We should be more charitable. Judge Montgomery sided with the court in the decision of the White case and he only dissented as to the manner of payment.

If the opinions of this court in the last two years were efforts to thwart the will of the Legislature, then the court has been guilty of that offence for the last fifty years. The case of Burton vs. Furman no money had been set apart to pay him and the decision was based upon that fact. In the case of White there were two judgments sorting out the amounts due him and his right to the same.

Judge Starbuck not only ordered the issuance of the writ, but he went further than the Supreme Court. Who lost by the corruption charged? Why the State saved $2,400 by this decision. It is not the amount, but the principle involved, says Judge Allen. There is the law in the 65th North Carolina Reports sustaining the decisions of Judge Starbuck and the Supreme Court. If these judges have followed the decisions of the Supreme Court of North Carolina we should go no further in these proceedings. I have given these proceedings careful investigation and I am satisfied the judges have not gone outside the law as thus laid down. I have studied this question and I am satisfied. I conceived it my duty to go through the matter for myself, and I am satisfied the judges acted within the law. If they have violated the law, this evidence must show beyond the peradventure of a doubt that they acted corruptly and maliciously. I have been taught that men do not become corrupt in a minute. When men from western North Carolina, who come from the home of the Chief Justice, say he has lived a life without reproach, I cannot believe that he can fall so suddenly from so

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: 'jI had kept adding to a cold and coughin the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines." For sale by C. E. Holton.

MOSBY AND BARON VON MASSOW

Denver, Col., Feb. 14.—Col. John S. Mosby, the Confederate ranger chief, who is on his way from California to Virginia, was shown here today a report that Baron Robert Von Massow, one of the men who fought under dim during the civil war, and who is now in the German army, has willed his fortune, estimated at $2,000,000, to the survivors of Mosby's famous battalion.

"I remember Baron Von Massow well," said Col. Mosby. He was a dashing soldier. He came to me well recommended, and I accepted him. He had been a member of the general staff of the Prussian army and was a man of fine appearance and of unquestioned personal bravery. His actual participation in our engagements showed that he was not averse to battle. I believe he enjoyed them.

"The Baron was severely wounded in an engagement with a California regiment in Fairfax county, Va., not far from Washington, and not in Shenandoah county, as has been said. I was leading the charge, when my horse was severely wounded, and, my progress being thus impeded, some of my men passed me, among them Baron Von Massow. Reid, an officer of the Californias, was overtaken by Massow and the former surrendered. As was our custom, Massow told him to go to the rear. When a man surrendered we could not afford to spare another to escort him back, so we usually sent him to the rear. When Massow told Reid to go to the rear he appeared to obey, but when he got behind him he shot Massow in the back, inflicting a dangerous wound. At the time Massow was busily engaged trying to take off the head of another officer of the Californians with his magnificent gold sabre, which he brought with him from Prussia. We did not use swords at all, having discarded them long ago as being obsolete. Instead we carried two pistols apiece.

"Massow asked for a discharge, as his wound was such that it would be impossible for him to participate in the fight. I not only gave him an honorable discharge, but wrote and handed to him in person a letter refe ring in complimentary terms to his service in our battalion. He returned to Prussia, recovered entirely from the wound and served with distinction in the Seven Weeks' War between the Prussians, Austrians and Italians in 1866 and four years later in the Franco-Prussian war. The last I heard of him he was in command of a brigade in the German army, having risen to the rank of general.

"Personally I know nothing about the report that he left his money to the survivors of my command, though the statement is positively made. A few years ago I heard through a friend in Baltimore that Baron Massow had made inquiries concerning me and my men with a view to remembering us in his will, but I paid but little attention to the matter at the time."

Replying to questions, Col. Mosby said that there were probably a hundred survivors of his command, which did not exceed about four hundred at any time during the war, as he preferred a small body of picked men, all of whom he could count upon in the greatest emergency.

"I have no doubt, however," said the Colonel, "that if it is true that the money has been left to my men, there will be at least 100,000 applicants and that it will be shown that I had a greater army than Grant."

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 15

The spirit which inspires some of the State newspapers. to sit back and refuse to say a word about pending legislation, or if they do write, it is with an apology and in an awesome style, as if the legislators were of some superior mould, is not serving the people as the Press should.—Newberne Journal.

We have noticed a disposition among some of our contemporaries to have great faith in the wisdom and patriotism of the Leislature and a willingness to trust it absolutely when certain questions upon which the press should speak, were up.

THE HOUSE STILL A'TALKIN'.

high a pinacle of unsullied honort Legislature is asked to say here tha. he has violated the greatest offence known to humanity. I could call a dozen here to testify to this old man's life. The evidence here does not amount to a scintilla. I offer as an offset this old man's life, which is an open book. I ask you to be careful. If he has committed error it is error of judgment. I tell you to pause before going to the extreme.

Judge Graham's Speech.

Mr. Graham, of Granville, made a forceable and elaborate argument in behalf of impeachment. He said he could not help but think that the gentleman from Martin had been proceeding from a mistaken position. This House is a grand jury here only to consider the evidence, from which it will prefer charges to the Senate, if justified. The plea of mercy, which the gentleman made would be more opportune when the trial takes place. The argument of the represenative from Martin would have had more effect if he had not signed the report of the State Treasurer, as a member of the Legislative Examining Committee. In this report he signed his name to a statement, which said that the money paid by the Treasurer on authority of the mandamus issued by the Supreme Court was without warrant of law. Something has come over the spirit of the dreams of the gentleman from Martin. He comes here now and makes a speech in direct opposition to the report which he signed. A man can be impeached for ignorance in violating the law. But in this case there was ulterior purpose, beginning with the Day case and continuing through a large number of cases, in which the court attempted to discredit the State. While the Legislature was in extra session during the summer of 1900 the court was as quiet as if a cyclone had struck it But at the October term, after the Legislature had adjourned, they came back and issued a mandamus. Judge Montgomery went to the clerk and told him he had no right to issue the mandamus. Another judge gave him an opinion in writing telling him that he had no authority to so act. And I want to say here that to this very day not an affidavit has been filed in this case. Later we see the clerk of the court going down to the Yarborough and holding a meeting in secret to consider the mandamus. Did any one ever before hear of a great judge writing out a writ of mandamus for a clerk of the court? The clerk says he never requested the mandamus. Judge Furches said on the back of the mandamus: "I write it at your request." Writing a mandamus which had never been requested, and saying that he sent it at the clerk's request. This makes it evident that the court was attempting to put some one in between them and the fire. After the court had told Colonel Kennan to issue the writ, Judges Clark and Montgomery told him again that he had no authority to do so. And another dastardly act was committed here. The majority refused to let the dissenting opinion of the judges be filed."

Mr. Curtis of Buncombe—"Was there ever a case on record where a Supreme Court judge was denied the privilege of filing a dissenting opinion?"

Mr. Graham—"Never that I ever heard of. This action on the part of these judges is enough to warrant their impeachment. Judges have been impeached for much less crime. A judge was impeached in Pennsylvania for saying to an associate justice that he should not express an opinion in a certain case. I want to know what the State of North Carolina is going to do with judges guilty of a far greater offence?

"The gentleman from Martin seems to think that a man cannot be impeached save for corruption in office. The law says that a judge can be impeached for any misconduct in office if so shown before the proper tribunal. Any misconduct in office renders a man liable to removal from the office which he holds. Authorities tell us that impeachment is not confined to crimes and indictable offences. The fact that David M. Furches has resigned as associate justice and been appointed chief justice does not save him from liability to impeachment. It has been decided that a judge can be disqualified from ever holding office again if he be guilty of offences that are impeachable Though he may resign an officer cannot avoid the consequences of his misconduct.

"Look at the condition of affairs that might result from this. We have shown to you that there was no error of judgment. The court knew the Legislature had passed an act forbiding the payment of the salary. It knew that the act of of 1899 said that no persons performing the duties of the office should receive the salary save those mentioned in the act. We are here as a grand jury. You have heard the evidence, and it is for you to say whether their acts are in violation of the law and the facts. Judge Connor agrees with the committee. The gentleman from Martin does not. He says the conclusion of facts are erroneous. But the conclusions are the same that he found in December, 1900. If these judges are not to be impeached, what shall we do with them? Having wilfully violated the Constitution, there are only two things to do with them. Either vote down the report or go to the Senate with articles of impeachment against David M. Furches or Robert M. Douglas.

"These judges have not only tried to discredit the Leglislature, but also to override the Constitution It makes no digerence how young they are or what their character. They are liable to impeachment as a result of their acts."

The House reassembled for the afternoon session at 4 o'clock, and proceeded at once to the consideration of the resolutions relative to impeachment proceedings coming over as unfinished business from the morning session.

Mr. Whitaker, of Guilford, was recognized and sent forward the following amendment to Mr. Connor's resolution:

"That the Senate and House of Representatives do most solemnly and firmly protest against the said action of said court as an invasion of the powers of the legislative department of the government, and setting a precedent dangerous to the constitutional rights of the people."

London Mail Coaches Menaced.

Doubtless for reasons of economy and expedition the post offices have their parcels between London and Brighton conveyed by mail coach, says a London exchange. By virtue of an old act, which has never been repealed, this coach is obliged to carry an arms basket containing a couple of pistols and an old cutlass. Highway robbery of the Dick Turpin type is practically unknown now in this country, but it would satisfy the public curiosity very much if one could be definitely informed whether the antique weapons carried by the Brighton coach are meant to serve as a sentimental link with the past or to be used as a means of defense in case of attack.

Dressing of Kid.

Fine kid is treated with a mixture of fine flour and yolks of eggs. One factory in London uses ten sacks of flour and 2,000 eggs a week for the purpose.

Vain Resolutions.

Make no vain resolutions. The safest way is to strengthen yourself in every encounter of life by meeting each particular one with patience and ethical insight. Do not make any elaborate plans as to what you intend to do. A resolution once made is sacred; you cannot break it without committing sin. You can no more violate promises to self than you can those made to a stranger. Between the "objective you" that bears and suffers and the "subjective you" that sits and wills, there should be an inviolable compact. You that must suffer must obey when the master-self commands. And when the decree goes forth let the subservient self be found always willing to respond.—American Hebrew.

The record in the case of Captain O. M. Carter was received and filed in the United States Supreme Court in Washington yesterday. The case is an appeal from the decision of the Circuit Court of the United States for the district of Kansas, denying Carter's motion for a writ of habeas corpus. The record is voluminous, covering 2,122 pages, most of them consisting of printed matter.

Failure

in life is more often due to exhausted nerve force than to lack of capital.

Strong nerves are the capital that helps men conquer conditions.

When people lose their capital they set to work to regain it.

When we lose our nerve force we ought to seek a means of getting it back. There is a way, certain and scientific.

COLDS

The quickest relief, for a cold, is by Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

We all have colds, you can try it and see. You will find the edge taken off in a night; and, in three or four days, you'll be wondering whether that cold amounted to anything anyhow.

That's relief. If you tackle it quick, the relief is quick and complete, if you wait till the cold is in full possession of head and lung, why, of course, the relief is quick if it comes in a week.

A little emulsion won't clear and restore your whole breathing-machine in a minute; don't be looking for miracles.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. Claude Barbee, of High Point, spent yesterday afternoon in the city.

Prof. R. L. Flowers, of Trinity College, Durham, spent last night in the in the city.

Ex-Lieutenant Governor Lewis A. Doughton was here last night on his way to Raleigh.

Mr. J. A. Young, of the Greensboro Nurseries, made a short business trip to Staley this afternoon.

Mr. R. L. Goodman, formerly a resident of this city, but now of Atlanta, Ga., was here a short while today.

Judge Council, of Boone, Watauga county, came from Raleigh last night and spent the night with Solicitor A. L. Brooks.

Mrs. J. H. Rone, of Richmond, Va., who has for some time been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. West on Cedar street, returned home this afternoon.

Miss Lou Terry, of Reidsville, arrived last night to visit her sister, Mrs. S. G Gaulden. She came in response to a message announcing the serious illness with pneumonia of little Miss Irene Gaulden.

Mr. C. H. Ireland returned on the belated vestibule this morning from Baltimore, where he went with Dr. W. L. Grissom. Mr. Grissom stood the trip to Baltimore as well as could be expected, and it is hoped he will return much benefited by his stay there.

Distillery Case.

As will be recollected, Mr. John Stewart's still was seized by the government on a charge of irregularity. Mr. Stewart claims that there was nothing wrong, and he has brought suite to recover the still fixtures and seven barrels of whiskey. Pending this Mr. Stewart has been indicted, together with his distiller, Mr. John White and Alvin Dick, a negro laborer, and also the storekeeper and guager who was at the still, D. C. Welker. Warrants were served yesterday on all of these by deputies J. A. Logan and J. T Millikan. The warrant came from officials at Winston and was taken out before T. J. Wilson of that place. The case was heard before United States Commissioner Wolfe, and continued till the 22nd, the defendants giving bond. Both Mr. Stewart and Mr. Welkin say there was nothing wrong.

First Birthday Party.

Quite a unique affair was given from 4 to 7 yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Thompson—the first birthday party of Miss Margaret Thompson, their little girl. The house was decorated beautifully with holly and evergreen, and refreshments were served. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. R. R. King, Mr. C. N. McAdoo, Mr. and Mrs. George Sergeant and Miss Louise, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Johnson and Miss Fleida, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Watson and Master Willie and Richard and Miss Margaret DeButts and Master Sidney. A most enjoyable evening was spent by the guests, who joined in wishing that all the little one's birthdays might prove as auspicious as her first.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to the people of Greensboro for their many and tender kindnesses shown me during the illness and death of my wife.

Respectfully,
C. E. THOMAS.

THROUGH LOVE TO LAUGHTER.

Lead your child through love to laughter,
Sorrow soon enough comes after;
Soon enough will real ills find it,
Let not false gloom blur or blind it;
Life has much of glee and gladness,
Smothering smiles in babes is madness,
Rather let them laugh and love it
With God's smiling skies above it;
Joyous juniors love to caper,
Ills for them are thin as paper,
While the gladness and the glory
Fill life to its upper story;
Smiles for them are finely filling,
Though some tears each may be spilling.

Let them laugh, the years are flying
To where each shall know more crying,
Burdened with the cares and trials,
Sufferings and self-denials
Which grow greater, stronger, bolder,
As their human slaves grow older.
Let the child laugh long and longer,
Let its love of glee grow stronger,
Better it should turn from troubles,
Laugh at irridescent bubbles,
Than eclipse its sunny gladness
In the atmosphere of sadness,
All too ready to bereave us,
And with ghosts of gloom to leave us.
Let your juvenile be jolly,
Lead him far from melancholy,
Harmless joys jar roof and rafter,
Lead your child through love to laughter.

I. EDGAR JONES.

HELEN BLAZES

By Frederick Van Rensselaer.

THIS is a story of a mare that made her repuattion during the weeks of almost incessant fighting before Petersburg and Bermuda Hundred. She lost her life in a scrimmage in which she was nearly the whole thing, for she had a way of taking matters into her own control and carrying her rider into the thickest of the fight, whether he liked it or not.

She was such a warrior herself that when she got worked up to the proper pitch she paid no attention to bugle calls or orders, and always started in to thrash the enemy single handed. That was one reason why she was called Helen Blazes. But there was another—her temper.

The name was not spelled just that way by the boys of the Third New York cavalry, but Jeb Smith, the man who rode her—and the only man who ever could ride her—was a minister before the war broke out, so he changed the original three words of her name into two, thus quieting his conscience and satisfying "the boys" at the same time.

She was picked up one night on a scouting expedition. Wink Tomkins brought her into camp the next morning, and he was a sight. You could hear him swearing at Blazes when they were a mile away, and between his curses and the laughter of his companions, and the plunging and kicking, biting and striking of the mare as they approached, it made a pretty sight for tired cavalrymen.

"There, by thunder!" said Wink. "I've landed her here, 'cos I said I would. The fellow that can ride her, can have her, for all I care," and he pitched the lead rope to me.

Blazes was a beauty, there was no denying that, and old McNamara—our captain—had his eye on her from the moment he saw her.

Well, there's no use in describing all that happened then. It took six of us to get a saddle and bridle on her, and three out of the six were laid up unfit for duty for a week after it; and after that she threw, one after another, pretty near the whole company.

Nobody could ride her until Jeb Smith came along. He had just been relieved from guard and was tired, but when his eyes lighted on the mare, he brightened up.

"That's a beauty, boys," he said, for he was a great lover of horseflesh, if he was a parson. The mare was standing idle at that moment, as docile as a kitten, and nobody in the world would have guessed what devil there was in her. Tompkins drawled out:

"Get on her back, parson, and try her."

Mind you, there was not one in the crowd who had not tried her, and who could not show a substantial bruise for his temerity. But the parson never caught on at all, and we all stood back while he handed his piece to a comrade, and without a moment's hesitationfi walked straight up to the mare and began to rub her nose; and what's more, she seemed to like it.

You could have purchased the whole company for a very small sum at that moment, for we felt mighty cheap. We didn't know whether it was jugglery, or what it was, but the fact remained that the mare did not treat him as she had treated us.

"Say, parson," bawled Wink Tompkins, "have you ever seen the critter before?"

"Certainly not," was the calm reply. "Why?"

"Well, I'm blowed! Boys, there's suthin' in religion after all."

While he was thus expressing himself, Jeb leaped into the saddle, and in a moment more he was riding around the place as easy as you please. Blazes single-footed, dog-trotted and cantered, and you'd have thought she was a Christmas-tree-rocking-horse, for all the ugliness she showed then.

"Who owns her?" asked the parson.

"You do, Jeb; you've earned her," said old Mac; and he walked away with a scowl on his face.

Well, Jeb was delighted, and he listened with amazement when we told him what a circus we'd been having. It was plain that he did not believe all of it, and presently he led her away to the stable, took the saddle off and tied her.

There was only a pole between the horses, and Jeb hadn't got half way back to where we were sitting, when there was the worst racket in that stable you ever heard. Youd have thought the rebs were after us for the noise and tumult. The horses neighed and squealed and you could hear boards splintering and timbers falling. Blazes had kicked herself loose, laid up two horses, scarred for life a half dozen more, and pawed her way right through the back of that place to liberty. She was pointing for home, too, when Jeb saw her.

"Here, you!" he yelled, and she stopped and waited while he went up and caught her.

We fixed up the stable, but we passed a unanimous resolution that Blazes couldn't tarry there any more, so the parson took her about 20 rods away and tied her to a fence. Then he gave her some oats, and you'd have thought she was the three graces rolled into one she was so quiet; but it didn't last long.

She finished her oats, and maybe she got tired or thirsty, or something. Anyhow, she pulled away one section of the fence, and broke loose from that, and then she started for the stable again. Some of us heard the horses squealing and kicking, and we went down to see what was the matter, and I'm blessed if Blazes wasn't trying to eat them.

She'd reach in and take a mouthful of loose flesh, set her teeth on it and pull, and then, when the horse she was biting kicked, she'd wheel and kick too. After that we made Jeb tie her with a chain and always to something that she could not pull aapart.

She ruined ten horses, kicked one mule to death and another one so that we had to kill him, and she tore the clothes all off of a darky who tried to feed her one day; but it got to be an old story after awhile, and we didn't pay much attention.

Nobody will ever forget the first time she was seen in a fight. You'd have thought she was human, from the sense she showed, and a fiend incarnate from the way she fought.

Our company had been out on a sortie and we were on our way home, everybody giving Jeb and Blazes a wide berth, for she'd kick and bite everything in reach on the road as well as in the stable, when we came upon a detachment of rebel cavalry between us and home. They had more men than we did, but there was only one thing to do, and that was to charge—and we did it.

I was abreast of Jeb when we got the word, and I never saw anything made of flesh and blood do what Blazes did then. Jeb couldn't hold her any more than you could hold a cyclone, and she ran like a streak of lightning. In the 30 or 40 rods between us and the confederates she got more than two rods ahead of the rest of us, so she struck the line first. I'll bet she covered 30 feet at every jump, and finally she took an admighty plunge into the air, and landed plump on top of a confederate sergeant and his horse, knocking them both down as easily as she would a blade of grass.

She reared and plunged, struck with her forefeet, kicked with her hind ones, and she used her teeth like a tiger. She'd grab a rebel horse by the throat and tear out a chunk of flesh; she'd seize a man by the leg or the arm, and pull him out of the saddle and trample upon him quicker than you could knock him out with a saber, and every time she had a chance she'd jump into the air and land right on top of horse and rider, and then bite and tear and strike her way through or past the next one she met.

I don't see how Jeb ever stayed on her back, but he did, and he came out without a scratch, too. Nobody ever made fun of Blazes after that brush, but her greatest fight was her last one.

We'd been out on a scouting and foraging expedition and were on our way back when we had that set-to. There were only ten of us, and we thought we had got past the point where we were likely to fall in with any rebs, when we saw a full company of confederate cavalry come over the top of a knoll not a quarter of a mile away.

There was no use for us to try to run, for we would only have run into their lines, and there wasn't a man there who wanted to surrender, so we yelled back and started to meet them.

We came together, and in a second we were all mixed up. They surrounded us like flies around a honey pot. We were so few that we could not keep together, and every man fought for himself, regardless of the others. Still, everybody could tell where Blazes was all the time, by the commotion she kicked up; and when in a fight like that one thing kicks up enough extra commotion to be noticed, you can bet it's moving.

I got a bullet through my right shoulder and another one in my left arm, and I was helpless; and just then my horse got a saber clip on the side of his head which sent him crazy, and somehow, he managed to kick himself out of the melee before he dropped, which he did with one of my legs under him; but I was where I could see the fight, and I kept my eyes on Blazes.

Just as I discovered her, I saw Jeb Smith pitch head first out of his saddle, and I knew that the parson was done for.

Blazes seemed to know it, too. She had been wild before, but she became a perfect demon then. She must have known that she had no rider, and most horses quit fighting when the man is gone off from their backs; but she didn't. She only got wilder and went in for vengeance.

She no longer paid any attention to the horses, but she went for the men, and whenever she grabbed one she literally tore him apart. Hundreds of shots were fired at her, and her body was covered with blood from the saber cuts she had received, but she pawed and kicked, and tore with her hoofs and teeth, turning like a cat, and bounding about with the ease and grace of a panther.

Then, when most of our men had gone down, and when practically all that there was left for the rebs to fight was that wild mare, there was another yell from the top of the hill, and I saw three companies of our own men coming to the rescue.

The Johnnies saw them, too, and they broke and ran, and as sure as I live, Blazes started after them.

She overtook the last man and seized him by the shoulder, dragging him from his horse to the ground. As he fell he fired his pistol, and the shot went through her heart, but she clung to her prey and her body fell upon the man who killed her.

There were only three of us left alive, out of the ten who went into that fight, and we felt almost as badly about Blazes as we did about our comrades.

Poor Jeb was shot through the head, and never knew what struck him. We buried him and the mare side by side, and there wasn't a dry eye in the crowd when we did it. She did more fighting that day than the whole ten of us, and there were over 300 wounds on her body when we found her.—Boston Globe.

Miss Freshleigh—Can you tell me, Mr. Sportleigh, if race horses are subject to any particular cutaneous disease?

Mr. Sportleigh—Not that I know of. Why do you ask, Miss Freshleigh?

"Because I often read in the papers that so-and-so was scratched by its owner before the race."—Harlem Life.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of siatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

RHEUMATISM—CATARRH—DISEASES CURED BY B. B. B.

It is the deep-seated, obstinate cases of catarrh and rheumatism that B. B B. (Botanic Blood Balm) cures. It matters not what other treatments doctors, sprays, liniments, medicated air, blood purifiers, have failed to do, B. B. B. always promptly reaches the real cause and roots out and drives from the bones, joints, mucuous membrane, and entire system the specific poison in the blcod that causes rheumatism and catarrh. B. B. B. is the only remedy strong enough to do this and cure ond so there can never be a return to the symptoms. Don't give up hope, but try B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) or 3 Bs.

For sale by druggists and Howard Gardner, in Greensboro, at $1 per large bottle, or 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. To prove our faith in B. B. B. we will send a trial bottle free to sufferers, so they may test the remedy at our expense. Address Blood Balm Co., Atlanta, Ga.

HIS LIFE WAS SAVED.

Mr. J. E. Lilly, a prominent citizen of Hannibal, Mo., lately had a wonderful deliverance from death. In telling of it he says: "I was taken with typhoid fever that ran into pneumonia. My lungs became hardened. I was so weak I couldh't even sit up in bed. Nothing helped me. I expected to soon die of consumption, when I heard of Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle gave great relief. I continued to use it and now am well and strong. I can't say too much in its praise." This marvellous medicine is the surest and quickest cure in the world for all throat and lung trouble. Regular sizes 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottles free at C. E. Holton's drug

A powerful engine cannot be run with a weak boiler, and we can't keep up the strain of an active life with a weak stomach; neither can we stop the human machine to make repairs. If the stomach cannot digest enough food to keep the body strong, such a preparation as Kodol Dyspepsia Cure should be used. It digests what you eat and it simply can't help but do you good. Howard Gardner.

NO RIGHT TO UGLINESS

The woman who is lovely in face form and temper will always have friends, but one who would be attractive must keep her health. If she is weak, sickly and run down, she will be nervous and irritable. If she has constipation or kidney trouble, her impure blood will cause pimples blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. Electric bitters is the best medicine in the world to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to purify the blood. It gives strong nerves, bright eyes, smooth, velvety skin, rich complexion. It will make a good-looking, charming woman of a run-down invalid. Only 50 cents at C. E Holton's drug store.

Philippine Temperature.

A friend here has received from Capt. E. L. Gilmer, a copy of the record of the temperature at Caraga, Philippine Island, for August, September, October and November. The lowest for all that time was 82, and occurred in August. The highest was in September and was 95. Each of these figures represent the temperature at noon. In both the morning and evening it was much lower. That isn't bad for a place which is supposed to be very hot. The trouble there is not the extreme heat, it seems, so much as the continuation of nearly the same temperature throughout the year.

Increased Assessment.

Mayor Taylor has received official information that the following increased valuation will be made on railroad property in this city for the past two years, under the new assessment:

Atlantic & Yadkin division of the Southern—For 1899, $7,803 07; for 1900 $7,795.55; Piedmont. the Southern between Greensboro and Danville—For 1899, $15,266 93; for 1900, $15,309.06; North Carolina—For 1899, $8,410 95; for 1900, $8,499.13.

Looking at Greensboro.

We are frequently having inquiries from business men as to business investments and enterprises in Greensboro. Just now our Mr. J. C Pierce is in receit of a letter from a friend in Virginia, wishing to put up capital and engage in milling or some other manufacturing enterprise. Our subscribers and advertisers will do well to make a note of this. The inquiry has been turned over to the Industrial and Immigration Association.

Police Changes.

Officers Alexander and Merrit today go on day duty, and their places on the night force will be supplied by officers Jeffries and Whittington.

Persons desiring milk, cream or butter from the A. & M. College dairy, are requested to send in their orders a day before the delivery is to be made, unless they can send for the article ordered.

A doting Chicago father whose first name is Arthur has a little daughter four years old. The family recently moved to a new locality in the city only a few doors away from a street car barn where several mules are kept.

The next morning after arriving at the new home the little girl heard one of the street car mules braying. It was the first time she had ever heard a mule bray, and she listened for a long time before she said:

"Mamma, is that one of papa's friends calling him?"

"No," said her mother; "I hear no one calling your father."

"Yes, there is," said the small girl. "L'sten, now; don't you hear him calling 'Ar-thur, Ar-thur, Ar-thur?'?"

"Oh, yes," replied the mother. "I hear him calling now. But that isn't one of your father's friends. He has more sense than most of your father's friends."—Chicago Tribune.

CATARRH

Catarrh has become such a common disease that a person entirely free from this disgusting complaint is seldom met with. It is customary to speak of Catarrh as nothing more serious than a bad cold, a simple inflammation of the nose and throat. It is, in fact, a complicated and very dangerous disease; if not at first, it very soon becomes so.

The blood is quickly contaminated by the foul secretions, and the poison through the general circulation is carried to all parts of the system.

Salves, washes and sprays are unsatisfactory and disappointing, because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. does. It cleanses the blood of the poison and eliminates from the system all catarrhal secretions, and thus cures thoroughly and permanently the worst cases.

Mr. P. H. McAllister, of Harrodsburg, Ky., writes: "Having been a terrible sufferer from Catarrh, and being now sound and well, the question often put to me is, 'What cured you?' In answer I feel it my duty to state that Swift's Specific is the medicine. I am such a true believer in the efficacy of Swift's Specific that I can honestly and conscientiously recommend it to any one suffering from Catarrh. Have recommended it to many, and am happy to say that those whom I have induced to use it can bear me out in the statement that it will cure any case of Catarrh if taken according to directions."

SSS is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known, and the greatest of all blood medicines and tonics.

If you have Catarrh don't wait until it becomes deep-seated and chronic, but begin at once the use of S. S. S., and send for our book on blood and skin disease, and write our physicians about your case
